1. On 28 June 1950 a new representative of the KKE is alleged to have arrived in Athens from one of the Cominform countries. She introduced herself by the name of "Niki". Immediately following her arrival, she called a meeting of all KOA and KOP secretaries. Also called to the meeting was Deputy Dionysios Christakos, the Communist penetration in Parliament.
2. "Niki" demanded that the secretaries apply the decisions of the Seventh Plenum to the actual situation in Greece. They refused to make any decision without consulting the opinion of the rest of the members of their sections. Then an order was issued to the secretaries to communicate to the members of their sections the excerpts from the decisions of the Seventh Plenum concerning the duties of Party members and to leave until later the analysis of the criticisms presented to the Plenum.
3. In addition "Niki" issued an order to the secretaries, stating that it was imperative for them to follow alertly the statements and other reactions noted among Party members when the Free Greece Radio broadcast excerpts from the Seventh Plenum decisions. The purpose of this was to detect any signs of opposition among Party members. If such opposition was noted, it could be explained that such statements were broadcast only for reasons of expediency, and that no grumbling was justified before the proper analysis of the decisions had been heard. Naturally, in the analysis there would be deletions or additions to the content so that any opposition by Party members could be moderated.
4. "Niki" formed a Control Committee for the Party and removed Demetrios Vatousianos from his post, criticizing him for the lack of ability which he had displayed.* Reportedly, he was going to be sent out of Greece.
